Ramundbergets Alpina AB

(Ramundberget ski resort, Sweden)

Mountain restaurant situated in Ramundberget, Sweden, on a small hill where the tree line meets the mountains. The building is located between slow-growing birch trees, brooks and rocks. A location that emphasises the building's relation to nature in summer and winter. The architects wanted to design a building that harmonises with the landscape's character in shape, design and material. The food and beverages in the restaurant are based on local specialities. The facade material is given by the surrounding nature, birch logs stand like a huge protecting screen against the Nordic icy winds. The round shape lets the cold winds pass and offers maximal outlook from the inside.
